He looked at me, laid a 38 revolver on the table, and asked, Does the company owe you any money, Tommy I said nervously, No, why do you ask If they do, we will make sure the president of the company hand delivers it to you here in Cleveland. I will never forget the paternal look on Tonys face. 10 Million Dollars was the number back then, but today it would be around Thirty Million or more. As we sat in his room, he continued, We will be taking over the company, and you will be the new president. Wow, an offer I couldnt refuse. This was all happening in the mid-seventies, and my position with CCA was Sales Director for West Virginia. My thoughts were staggering. Then he asked, If we loan CCA ten million dollars, what are you going to use for security, your family I dont remember my thoughts when he asked me the question, but I am sure the security of my family was not important. My lust for money was so overwhelming, I didnt think about...
