Over the years, our extensive reviews of DODs major weapon system Cost, Schedule, and acquisitions have usually found positive outcomes when programs follow Performance Issues for the evolutionary, knowledge-based strategy espoused by the best practices New Acquisition Programs of leading commercial firms and now established in DOD policy. This includes establishing a solid business case that accurately and realistically matches available resources ( technologies, money, expertise, and time ) to warfighter needs. The Defense Acquisition Performance Assessment report in January 2006 also found that a disciplined business approach was needed to improve DODs weapon system acquisition process. One...
